Seaside Poems

Anonymous, 'The Seafarer'. This 124-line poem is often considered an elegy, since it appears to be spoken by an old sailor looking back on his life and preparing for death. He discusses the solitariness of a life on the waves, the cold, the danger, and the hardships. As such, the poem captures the bewitching fascination the sea holds for us, but also its darker, more unpredictable side.

Larkin's poem of praise to the English seaside appeared in his 1974 volume High Windows. Like 'The Whitsun Weddings' and 'Show Saturday', it's a surprisingly upbeat poem, celebrating the English tradition of heading to the beach with the family to enjoy the 'annual pleasure, half a rite' of a trip to the seaside.
