Hans Fallada was a German writer of the first half of the 20th century. Some of his better known novels include Little Man, What Now? and Every Man Dies Alone. His works belong predominantly to the New Objectivity literary style, a style associated with an emotionless reportage approach, with precision of detail, and a veneration for 'the fact'. Fallada's pseudonym derives from a combination of characters found in the Grimm's Fairy Tales: The titular protagonist of Hans in Luck, and Falada the m

In "The Drinker", the depiction of the spiritual and physical sordidness of life in an insane asylum is spot on, except for mental health treatments. During Fallada's internment, there is no mention of the body and mind altering pharmaceutical drugs that inmates are most often coerced into taking in the name of mental health.
