This series is so much fun. This time the Blackett girls are pitted against their redoubtable great-aunt and must behave themselves impeccably so as not to bring auntly wrath down on their absent mother's head. (They're the martyrs.) The Calumn sibs, who were invited to stay, take to the woods and camp out in a semi-ruined cabin. (They're the Picts.)

The Picts were a confederation of Celtic-speaking peoples who lived in what is today eastern and northern Scotland during the Late British Iron Age and Early Medieval periods. Where they lived and what their culture was like can be inferred from early medieval texts and Pictish stones. Their Latin name, Picti, appears in written records from Late Antiquity to the 10th century.
